Boí Taüll. With good weather, this Wednesday the ISMF European Championships Skimo Boí Taüll 2022 began at the Ribagorza ski resort of Boí Taüll. They did so with the Sprint race, a spectacular competition that has forced athletes to give everything, from the very beginning. The Spanish team has won a total of six medals, where Oriol Cardona's first position stands out, certifying his great physical shape.

The track has allowed the spectators to follow the competition from anywhere in the lower area of the station and this has made it easier to experience the first round of the championship with emotion. Boí Taüll ski resort has done a good job to keep the competition area in the best conditions.

All the categories have followed the same track, except for the men senior category who has followed a longer one. The track consisted of a first section where the athletes met two diamonds (the first before the climb and the second in the middle of it), followed by a section where you had to remove the skins and load the skis on the back to later continue with a transition section until reaching the only descent to cross the finish line.

The first round of all the categories has been an individual qualifying part, leaving one by one every twenty seconds. The quarterfinals and the semifinals have been qualifying rounds, where the best three continued in competition. The final was played by the best 6 athletes in the category.
